

After filling out the Material Log form, the user will either select the material that matches their search (these materials are brought from the system's database of materials) or they may opt to click the "Create New Entry" button if they do not see the material that they wanted. Either of these options will bring the user to the entry form. This form will either be partially filled out (due to the data in the database) or it will be completely empty (if they chose to create a new entry). They then have the choice to fill out several fields, including a photo of the material, color name, brand, amount of material left, and the type of material. Upon clicking the "Create Entry" button at the bottom of the screen, the user will be redirected to their material log with a brand new entry at the top in the style shown in the file "Material_Log_Entry_Creation_Design.pdf".
